Interments: Blockley, Francisville & Cherry Hill Burial Grounds, Philadelphia Board of Health, 1819-1836

Philadelphia City Archives
Record Group 37.18

Extracted from FHL film #0972953

'Register of Permits granted for interments in Blockley Burying Ground, on the West Side of Schuylkill the Property of the Board of Health,' record group 37.18 of the Philadelphia City Archives.

The first, and largest, group of these transcribed records is burials in the Blockley Burial Ground. They begin in 1819, but by the year 1833 there were fewer burials recorded until by 1836 there was only one. Blockley Burial Ground was located in West Philadelphia, near the Almshouse.

The second group of burials listed here was in the Board of Health property in Francisville. Francisville Burial Ground was located in the area also known as Vineyard, and was located south of Poplar Street, near what is today the 1700 block of Ridge Avenue.

The third group of burials was in the Board of Health property in Cherry Hill.
Cherry Hill Burial Ground was located in what is now the Fairmount area, around Fairmount Avenue and 18th to about 23rd Streets.

I have no further information concerning any of these burial grounds, but if you need to know more, a suggestion would be to consult the work of Charles R. Barker's Philadelphia Cemetery Register which can be found in the collections of the Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania, and also on microfilm through the LDS church (FHL #0383273).

The handwriting is different on the records over the years, with most of it legible. But some of it is very slanted to the right and appears to have been written hastily. Some letters seem to be other than what would make sense, and one administrator had the habit of using the old style letter "f" in the case of a double "s" in a name. Where there is a question on spelling I have noted so, and always, if you think one of these folks might be your ancestor, please view the original records.
